BP caps oil flow at long last

▶ After a string of failed attempts new cap appears to stem oil flow ▶ President Barack Obama calls it a positive sign, but cautions testing phase still on

BP finally choked off the flow of oil into the Gulf of Mexico on Thursday — 85 days and up to 697 million litres after the crisis unfolded — then began a tense 48 hours of watching to see whether the capped-off well would hold or blow a new leak.

To the relief of millions of people along the Gulf Coast, the big, billowing brown cloud of crude at the bottom of the sea disappeared from the underwater video feed for the first time since the disaster began in April, as BP closed the last of three openings in the 75-ton cap lowered onto the well earlier this week.

Even if the well holds out for the whole two days, the vents will be opened again and oil released while engineers make sure oil and gas aren't breaking out of the well into the bedrock.

But the company stopped far short of declaring victory. There is the risk that pressure from the oil trapped under the cap could fracture the well and make the leak even worse, causing oil to spill from other spots on the sea floor.

If engineers see any sign of a new leak erupting, the cap will be reopened, allowing oil to spill into the sea again. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relief and disbelief

The news elicited joy mixed with skepticism from wary Gulf Coast residents following months of failures.

- Alabama Gov. Bob Ridley: "That's great. I think a lot of prayers were answered today."
- Oysterman Stephon LaFrance: "That's a lie. I don't believe they stopped that leak. BP's trying to make their self look good."
- Deckhand Manuel Meyer: "It feels good, but, I mean, the damage is already done."

B.C. cashes in on online gambling

British Columbia is hoping to get some of an estimated $100 million gambled by its residents on offshore websites each year by becoming the first jurisdiction in North America to offer legal, online casino gaming.

The province insisted Thursday the money collected through its online casino will be redirected to services like health care and education.

Critics blasted the plan, calling it irresponsible, while others predicted it won't have much of an impact on gamblers.

As of Thursday, residents can log on to the B.C. Lottery Corp.'s PlayNow.com website and wager on games like blackjack, roulette and craps. Peer-to-peer poker is expected later this year, and money can also be put down on bingo, sports bets and lotteries.

Rich Coleman, the province's housing and social development minister, told reporters the hard reality is that gambling activity isn't going anywhere and the Liberal government wants to ensure money gambled in B.C. stays in B.C.

Coastal waters now named Salish Sea

Evidence of settlement around waterways of modern-day B.C. dates back roughly 11,000 years

KYLE FARQUHARSON
VANCOUVER
@METRONEWS.CA

The Salish Sea was officially designated Thursday at a ceremony in Victoria.

The name, endorsed by both Canada and the U.S., will now apply as an umbrella term encompassing the southern part of the Strait of Georgia, the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Puget Sound.

None of the existing names of those waterways will change as a result of Thursday's ceremony.

"Coast Salish peoples have traversed these waters for thousands of years and this name pays homage to our collective history," said Lt.-Gov. Steven Point, who is of First Nations descent.

He added that the name change represents a step in the bridge of reconciliation with B.C. aboriginal peoples.

Point and KwaGulth Hereditary Chief Tony Hunt also presented a hand-crafted canoe to the Canadian navy in honour of the organization's centennial.

Base jumper recovering

A base jumper stuck on the face of The Chief in Squamish is recovering with a broken leg, RCMP said Thursday.

The 27-year-old man was stranded on the mountain for a few hours on Wednesday after he jumped with a packed parachute and a gust of wind spun him around. The man was slammed back into the face of the mountain and managed to hold on to a ledge.

He then cut the chute loose and used a radio to call a fellow base jumper for help.

He was rescued by Squamish Search and Rescue.

Activists sit-in over housing

OLYMPIC VILLAGE. Four activists have voluntarily ended their occupation of a suite in Vancouver's Olympic athletes' village. The activists entered the condo posing as potential buyers and then planned to stay there for just more than 11 hours. But police say after almost three hours, the activists left and won't face charges. The activists want to pressure the city to restore its promises to set aside units in the development for social housing. Those promises have largely evaporated as costs ballooned and the city had to bail out the developer.

'70s retrowear in Lions' future

Back to the good 'ol days with throwback unis for three games

KYLE FARQUHARSON
VANCOUVER@METRONEWS.CA

The B.C. Lions' 1970s-inspired retro unis — which the team will sport three times this season — will add another dimension to the 2010 campaign's throwback feel, hall-of-famer Jim Young says.

Young was a standout Lions running back and wide receiver from 1967 to 1979.

"Many fans from the 1970s are still fans of the team today ... and I think the retro look will bring a lot of those people back to the stadium," he said.

"(The retro uniform) is a nice slick look, and it's good for us and the fans," added the Lions resident all-star receiver Geroy Simon.

The players will wear the old-school apparel Aug. 7 against the Stamps, Aug. 27 also against Calgary, and Sept. 11 against Toronto.

"I remember in the '70s, the kids would run out on the field once (the game) was over. Sometimes we took more hits at that point than we did during the game."

JIM YOUNG, LIONS' CFL HALL OF FAME RUNNING BACK/WIDEOUT

The jersey revival comes as part of the CFL's Retro Funk initiative this season.

Girl, 16, lucky to be alive

A 16-year-old girl is recovering in hospital after friends, strangers and trained rescuers worked together to save her from what could have been a deadly day on the waters of a Fraser Valley river.

RCMP in Agassiz say Amelia Victor was swimming in the Chehalis river on Wednesday when she was overcome by the strong current.

For video of the rescue, go to metronews.ca/local

Two other teens managed to drag the unconscious girl to the river bank while two men on the far side of the river swam across to stay with her while the younger pair went for help.

As rescuers arrived, two RCMP officers also swam across the river, hauling a backboard — and hooked the injured girl to the police helicopter hovering above.

Whale vote could yield lawsuit: Chair

Aquarium head accuses commissioner of 'political mischief' Parks Board to review captivity bylaw in 2015

JEFF HODSON
@METRONEWS.CA

A proposed citywide vote on whether the Vancouver Aquarium should keep whales and dolphins could result in a lawsuit, its chair charged Thursday.

Aaron Jasper said a motion by Stuart Mackinnon "puts the taxpayers of Vancouver at considerable risk from a lawsuit." He accused his fellow commissioner of trying to "initiate political mischief."

Mackinnon, however, said he checked with the city and was told there is nothing illegal with a non-binding plebiscite.

Percentage of Vancouver residents who agreed that the Aquarium should be allowed to bring in new whales or dolphins if they are injured and need human care to survive, according to a 2006 Vancouver Aquarium phone survey.

"All we're doing is asking for public opinion," Mackinnon said.

The Parks Board will review its captive cetacean bylaw in 2015.

Mackinnon has proposed the plebiscite for the 2011 civic election, potentially the last one before 2015.

The aquarium has not threatened a lawsuit, Jasper said, but added that staff informed him the possibility exists.

"I'm not against having a conversation about cetaceans in captivity," Jasper said.

Appeal denied in case of online luring

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The country's top court has upheld the conviction of an Edmonton man charged with luring a 13-year-old boy on the Internet.

In a unanimous 9-0 ruling released Thursday, the Supreme Court of Canada dismissed Michell Rayal Levigne's appeal.

Writing for the court, Justice Morris J. Fish said that under the law Levigne is presumed to have believed that a police officer who baited him on the Internet was a 13-year-old boy calling himself Jessy G.

Fish said Levigne did not take the "reasonable steps" required by law to determine whether the person he was communicating with was in fact 13 before arranging a sexual liaison.

"The accused's convictions must be upheld," Fish wrote.

There is no defence in the fact Jessy G was actually an undercover cop baiting him. THE CANADIAN PRESS

"The 'reasonable steps' invoked by the accused were in fact neither 'reasonable' nor 'steps to ascertain the age' of the person with whom he was communicating by computer for the avowed purpose of his own sexual gratification."

Pamela Anderson didn't do any dancing around when she was asked Thursday what she thought of the death of a fifth horse at the Calgary Stampede's chuckwagon races.

"I think this is very cruel," the former Dancing With the Stars contestant said of the race, which is one of the main attractions at the Calgary event now underway.

"I'm not a fan. I never have been."

So far this year, horses have died from heart attacks, been euthanized after a shoulder injury and one broke its back from bucking too hard at the Stampede. A rider has also been seriously injured.

Anderson, who gained fame as lifeguard C.J. Parker in TV's Baywatch in the 1990s, is an outspoken animal-rights activist who says she has cared about critters since she was a child.

Canadian video games gain ground

◐ Ranked as the third-largest developer behind Japan, U.S.

They wear the label of made-in-Canada video games.

Scrabble for the iPad tablet and iPhone and Assassin's Creed and the upcoming Tales from Space: About a Blob for game consoles are among the many examples of home-grown talent.

Canada is among the world's top video game developers, with creative talent and government tax breaks attracting both global and independent studios whose products appeal not only to hard core players but the growing ranks of casual gamers.

"What makes us stay here is the talent that we have found because the war is going to be won on the quality of the titles," said Ubisoft Montreal CEO Yannis Mallat.

But nobody questions that tax breaks have helped the industry grow.

French-based Ubisoft first arrived in Montreal in 1997 with the help of tax incentives from the Quebec government. It now has 2,300 employees in Canada.

More than 14,000 people are directly employed by the Canadian video game industry.

Ubisoft Montreal is known for developing the action-adventure games Assassin's Creed and Splinter Cell, among others.

Next up for the Ubisoft Montreal studio is the interactive fitness game, Your Shape, which has technology to scan a player's body and track movements. It will be released this fall for Microsoft's Xbox 360 console.

"In real time, you will have a coach with you," Mallat said of the game, which will help players with their fitness.

"I think if we design games in a good way, we can appeal to a much wider audience."

Vancouver police Sgt. Mark Steinkampf is one of the stars of The Beat, a 10-part docu-drama that followed members of the VPD's beat enforcement team in the Downtown Eastside during the spring of 2008. It has aired in Australia and Quebec and now airs Fridays at 9 p.m. on Citytv.

What will Vancouver viewers take from the show?
It will open a lot of people's eyes as to the true nature of the (Downtown Eastside).

People like to portray this area as a big happy family, but from what I see, not a lot of that goes on. The viewer is going to see the area for what it is, the sad and sick existence of many of these people.

I'm not trying to portray these people as bad ... I've seen many people get out of this area and move on to become decent people. But ... a lot of the folks down here are just plain bad. They are predatory in nature and prey on the weak and the sick and the elderly. Even if they're drug addicts and they cleaned up, they'd still be bad people.

Any reservations making the series?
I didn't want it to have a Hollywood feel. They're at work with me and my squad. We're not at work with them. We are what we are. We are the people that we are. We're the police in one of the toughest areas to work in, in Canada, if not North America. We wanted the honest, brutal truth and reality of the Downtown Eastside to come through. And I think it does.

How do you deal with the sadness?
I recognize that folks didn't wake up thinking that they would end up in a place like this. When you catch some of these people in a lucid moment and the sadness and the stark reality of this existence comes through — I don't think a person would be human if you didn't feel sadness for them.

The saddest thing that I see is a family member coming down here and approaching me with pictures of their kids, "Have you seen my child?" They come from all across Canada, from Toronto or the Yukon, "I've come all this way because I've heard my child is here. Have you seen them?" That probably strikes me the hardest. ● JEFF HODSON

A question of freedom

Letters & Tweets

TORONTO. A head scarf should pose no threat to anyone. Those who force women to wear it are those who should be punished, not the women who wear the hijab as part of their faith.

There is a security issue, but I see this as something that we should compromise on. I agree that everyone should have their face visible for government ID and such, but when simply going for a walk, there should be no restrictions on what anyone can wear.

If one law abolishes the veil, that is only the beginning of the invasion of religious rights. This is not only a response to the new French laws, but also a message to those who wish to see this law imposed in Canada.

I am Canadian. I was born in Ottawa and was been brought up in Canadian culture. I am a Muslim convert and, as such, I see both sides of the argument.

I wear the hijab proudly as a symbol of my faith. Many people see the veil as a way to control women. They argue that we live in a modern society where women are free.

That is true and for that I am grateful. But if we force women to take off their hijab or niqab, are we not as bad as those who force it upon them?

Angie worth her Salt

▶ Angelina Jolie plays a CIA operative accused of being a Russian spy in Salt, opening next week.

She's been Lara Croft, she's been Mrs. Smith This time Angelina Jolie returns to the action game as a spy on the run Actress admits getting back to stunts was a tough challenge

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Angelina Jolie is used to having her words twisted around by magazines — even when those magazine are as esteemed as Vanity Fair. The magazine's latest issue features the iconic actress with the headline "Farewell, Angelina?" But she insists she isn't going anywhere.

"I'm not retiring. Everybody seems very excited about that, but not at this time," she tells Metro. "Basically I said something as simple as, 'In the years to come I'll be doing less film, I'm sure, and there are many other things to do in life.'"

Far from retiring, Jolie hits movie theatres next week with Salt, her first major action role since Wanted or Mr. And Mrs. Smith. Jolie stars as Evelyn Salt, a CIA operative who is accused of being a Russian spy. The Oscar-winning actress is the first to admit getting back into the stunt-heavy world took some adjustment — not that she had much time for it.

"It had been so long since I'd worked. I'd had babies, and it was just actually getting my boots back on and punching again," she says. "So we really crammed it in pretty fast. It was a lot of learning while doing."

Salt was originally about a male CIA agent — and set to star Tom Cruise — before Jolie came on board. In fact, the gender hadn't changed yet when she got the script.

"I got a call and they said, 'We've got a movie for you, and your name is Edwin and you have a wife.' I thought, very cool," Jolie remembers. But a part of Salt's old gender remains, as in one scene Jolie has to don a disguise as a male military officer, something she found fascinating — if time-consuming. "It was probably something like four hours, five hours. It was long," she says of the transformation process. "You do everything, you tape your breasts down, we had to put sweatpants on, all these things underneath to try to make me bulk up."

Women in action

Though she's been just as successful in dramas like A Mighty Heart and her Oscar-winning turn in Girl, Interrupted, Angelina Jolie still loves the action films that helped make her a star. She attributes part of that success to her ongoing professional relationship with stunt guru Simon Crane. Jolie admits, though, that it's hard finding good leading roles in action movies for women. "It was surprising when we looked into it that a woman hadn't done an action movie based in reality. They were always — the ones I've done — all in fantasy or some kind of science fiction. We did think if (Salt) worked it would be really nice for women."

A dream come true

Inception
Genre: Sci-FI/Thriller
Director: Christopher Nolan
Stars: Leonard DiCaprio, Ellen Page, Marion Cotillard

Hype and anticipation can sabotage even the best movies, but somehow Christopher Nolan's long-awaiting, mystery-shrouded Inception manages to not just survive all the expectations loaded onto it but surpass them.

It's easily the best film of the year so far. And as for all that mystery and radio silence, it's true that Inception works best when you go into it knowing as little as possible, but that doesn't mean knowing what it's about will ruin it.

Not that we're about to tell you everything that happens. Simply put, Inception follows Cobb (Leonardo DiCaprio), an expert in a form of corporate espionage that involves stealing information through people's dreams, as he mounts a seemingly impossible heist in the hopes of clearing his name and reuniting with his family. The fact that something this far-fetched seems perfectly plausible on screen is a testament to how good writer/director Nolan is.

Nolan can't take all the credit for this, as DiCaprio and the rest of the cast shine in their roles. Notable standouts are a dashing Thomas Hardy as quippy counterfeiter and Ellen Page as an architectural student — and the audience's best vantage point into the story. Overall, the film delivers on all levels, mixing suspense, gunplay, romance, mind-bending effects and thought-provoking themes. Be ready to want to see it again.

NED EHRBAR

Genre: Drama
Director: Luca Guadagnino
Stars: Tilda Swinton

I Am Love is a labour of love from Tilda Swinton. Swinton's Emma is a Russian woman who was so thoroughly re-bred by her upper class Italian husband and his family that she no longer remembers her real name. During a strained dinner party, her son's new friend drops by and there is a suggestion of heat. It forces her to examine life and she tentatively tries to change. The film succeeds, thanks to the delicate touch of the filmmaker and Swinton's masterful work.

ANNE BRODIE

Mr. Nobody
Genre: Drama
Directors: Jaco Van Dormael
Stars: Jared Leto, Sarah Polley, Diane Kruger

Director Jaco Van Dormael returns to filmmaking with this visually sumptuous film about the various possible lives one man could have led. Jared Leto stars as the titular blank slate and we see collection of possible realities based on the choices that he could have made in life. Confusing? Yes, but in a rewarding way that leads to hours of movie-drunk discussion about "what it all means."

PHIL BROWN

The Kids Are All Right
Genre: Drama
Director: Lisa Cholodenko
Stars: Annette Bening

Annette Bening is having quite a year, acting-wise. After turning in a brilliant and raw performance in the little-seen Mother and Child this spring, she nearly walks away with the Kids Are All Right as Nic, the breadwinner half of a well-to-do lesbian couple raising their two teenage children in Los Angeles. Julianne Moore plays her partner in the film

MERLIN'S MAGIC ENDURES

We can all conjure up an image of what Merlin the Magician looks like. He appears in dozens of movies, everything from the Disney cartoon Sword and the Sorcerer to Monty Python and the Holy Grail.

While we may not be able to nail the specifics — eye colour or height — the basics are easy — kindly old man with a long white beard, pointy hat, flowing robe. That's the likeness of the magician that has graced movies for decades — including this weekend's The Sorcerer's Apprentice starring Nicolas Cage as a magician and Jay Baruchel as his nerdy protege — but over the years there have been a number of interpretations of the character. Here's a look back:

Knightriders

George A. Romero brought the Arthurian legend forward to present day, and, of course, along with that comes a modern take on Merlin. Played by Brother Blue, an Ivy League trained actor and pastor, in his only onscreen credit, the wizard is a harmonica-playing hippie with butterflies painted on his face and forehead who spouts Woodstock inspired dialogue like, "Magic got to do with the soul, man. Only the soul's got destiny. It got wings. It can fly. That's magic. The body's just got a few minutes down here in the dirt with the rest of us." Far out, man.

Son of Dracula

A rock 'n' roll Merlin! A blend of horror, comedy, and music, Son of Dracula stars Ringo Starr as the wizard in a story that could only have emerged from the drug addled 1970s. The story scarcely makes sense, but it is fun to see Ringo and co-star Harry Nilsson (along with cameos by '70s rock legends John Bonham and Keith Moon). Luckily the movie does have an great gothic soundtrack making it one of the rare movies which is actually more fun to listen to than to watch.

The Spaceman and King Arthur

In The Spaceman and King Arthur (also known as Unidentified Flying Oddball), a loose adaptation of Mark Twain's A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, Merlin is presented against type as an evil character intent on dethroning Arthur.

▶ 62-year-old reggae legend Jimmy Cliff recently finished the concept album Existence.

Cliff still has many rivers to cross

Reggae superstar contemplates his peers, his past, his future and Existence Why he can't stop moving — onstage and in his career

pat.healy@metro.us

Jimmy Cliff refuses to stand still, literally. When the 62-year-old reggae legend performs, he high-steps, skanks, shimmies and grooves like a man one-third of his age, all while hitting the high notes.

"It's a part of me," he says of his movements. "I just can't help that."

Cliff also carries this exuberance into his career. He just finished making a concept album called Existence that will see a fall release.

"I really don't want to live in the past at all. There is always something new to learn." JIMMY CLIFF

"I really don't want to live in the past at all," he says. "There is always something new to learn. And what makes it interesting and exciting is some of the audiences I am playing for are all across the board, from really young youths to people of my generation."

While Cliff wants to keep on moving, he's aware that some fans may need to be reminded of his past. And in doing so, he says he doesn't mind singing classics from his "Harder They Come" era.

"What I feel is that I tuned in to one moment in time where I captured it; what a great piece of music, what a great sound, what great inspiration. That has become kind of timeless," he says. "So I never get bored performing them."

He can see clearly now

A 2010 inductee into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, Jimmy Cliff has inspired some of the greats — his songs have been covered by everybody from Cher to Bruce Springsteen to Jerry Garcia. He has also formerly worked with departed legends like Bob Marley and Joe Strummer. Does he ever reflect upon how so many of his peers from days past have passed?

"Yeah, I do reflect on it," he says. "The thing is, I look at it in a way where everybody is on the planet to do something, and those people came to do what they needed and then left. Me, I have not finished what I came to do yet, so I have this burning desire to take my things really higher."

MY CUPCAKE WITH COURTNEY

Courtney Love isn't crazy. At least not the Courtney I've been talking to.

Since March, I've spent hours talking with her, both on the phone and face-to-face. Our talks have covered everything from how her new album, Nobody's Daughter, came to be to why her spelling and grammar is so bad when she posts messages to Twitter.

Our last conversation took place in her dressing room well after midnight last Saturday. Hole v2.0 had just played a pretty smokin' set in front of 2,000 adoring fans. Courtney seemed pleased with how the evening went. But then she looked over at a sheaf of papers on the counter and sighed.

"This is what I do. I work on this stuff for 14 hours a day. Then I play a show."

That "stuff" involves her mission to expose what she says is a massive fraud that's been perpetrated upon her and the estate of Kurt Cobain. Few people apparently take her seriously. No one, that is, except Courtney's Twitter Army who are helping to organize and codify pages and pages of evidence.

"I've been putting up documents, powers of attorney and legal papers that clearly show what's happened. How could that be my signature on a document signed in L.A. when I was in New York at the time? How could money be moved in Frances Bean's (her estranged daughter's) name to Geneva and Zurich without me knowing about it?"

She slumps in her chair and starts taking off the night's makeup. "I'm now doing FBI handwriting analysis to prove that those weren't my signatures." She goes on to explain how nine accountants and a bevy of lawyers all allegedly managed to divert money into unauthorized places like properties purchased on behalf of a variety of people allegedly named Cobain.

How much money? She quietly mentions a figure of $28 million. "It's probably more. Some of the people involved make Bernie Madoff look warm and fuzzy. I just wasn't good with money. And I had some serious problems at the time this was happening."

She picks up one of the pink frosted cupcakes I brought and takes a bite. The day before was her 46th birthday.

"I'm not crazy, even though people think I am. I'm going to see this through."

I've seen these documents. I believe her. I wish her well.

British support keeps act afloat

We Are Scientists have lived through a decade of messy changes in the music industry ◗ American band is more well-known in U.K. than at home

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

A lot can happen in 10 years. Just ask We Are Scientists. When the Brooklyn-based band started playing in 2000 about 15 people attended their gigs. Now they're huge in England, they've played Glastonbury, they've gone from a trio to a duo and they've lived through the music industry's messy changes.

"We were the last band to get an old school style major label deal," says singer Keith Murray. "Now everyone is terrified all the time."

Well, not everyone. We are Scientists may not be a household name in America, but in England Murray gets recognized in bars. That's helped the band stay afloat in this uncertain music business.

"We keep ourselves going with revenue mostly from the U.K.," he says. "We are more than a break even band in the U.S., but we're not worried about whether we'll have enough money to survive."

A lot of American bands are big in the U.K., but, if you didn't know much about the group, you could mistake them for being British. They've charted well there, the NME writes about them as much as any English band, they had a TV show on MTV U.K. and their new studio drummer is Andy Burrows, from British darlings Razorlight.

Murray says their success was more of a right place at the right time thing than anything else. "We just fit in the mainstream then," he says. "They were playing Arctic Monkeys and Killers."

Their music has evolved over the years — they've gone from jangly dance rock to more lush, keyboard influenced sounds — but their latest, Barbara, harkens back to With Love and Squalor, their 2005 major label debut.

The record is filled with infectious dance pop tunes, think Franz Ferdinand or Arctic Monkeys, and even though the new new wave went out of style a few years ago, these songs would still fit in on any radio station playlist.

"The last record was the two of us and we wanted to expand our musical pallet," says Murray, explaining why this album sounds more like their '05 disc. "This one we recorded as a three piece band, and that's really why the record sounds like it does."

"We're a pretty frugal band. We're DIY not cause it's a philosophy we adhere too on some punk level — we like doing everything ourselves because this is a cool business to be in."

drummer's story

- In 2007, just a few days before We Are Scientists were to go on tour, their original drummer Michael Tapper quit the band.
- Tour drumming duties were handled by Gary Powell of Dirty Pretty Things and Adam Aaronson from The High Speed Scene, but they didn't have anyone to record their new record with.
- Keith Murray, the band's singer, says the idea was to have a revolving cast of drummer friends — that included Andy Burrows, Razorlight's timekeeper. But when Burrows quit his band he asked if he could join WAS and they said yes.

What's next for Swift?

Singer to answer questions about followup to hit album Fearless and more in live chat ◗ Grammy winner has millions of social media followers

Singer Taylor Swift will host a live chat to talk with fans about a new album.

Swift said she's always getting questions from fans via the Internet and social networking sites.

Next Tuesday she'll be providing answers about her followup to Fearless and more.

"I've gotten so many questions from fans — on Twitter, Facebook, MySpace, my website, everywhere really, and it's so incredible to see how excited everybody is about what's next," Swift said in an email to The Associated Press.

"I want them to be the first to know about my new music, and I can't wait to talk to everybody as directly as I can!"

Swift will host the chat from Nashville at 5 p.m. ET. Fans will be able to submit questions on Swift's website, social networking platforms and Ustream.tv.

Swift was recently ranked No. 3 on Forbes' list of the most powerful celebrities on social media. She has seven million Facebook friends and 3.6 million Twitter followers.

Fearless was the top-selling album of 2009 and netted Swift four Grammys.

Hawkins laments loss of rock 'n' roll

Foo Fighters drummer has disdain for recording practises ◐ New album showcases rock influences

Technology helped the Foo Fighters' Taylor Hawkins record with two of his rock idols on his solo project, but the drummer doesn't think much about how it has impacted the music world on the whole.

Hawkins has a disdain for current recording practices, and blames it mostly on Pro Tools, the digital audio workstation software that's used by most artists.

"It's ruined music as far as I'm concerned, at least rock 'n' roll," Hawkins said. "It's great for dance music."

Hawkins' latest solo release, Red Light Fever, is far from the disco world. The album showcases Hawkins' 1970s rock influences. A highlight of the project for Hawkins was getting Queen guitarist Brian May and drummer Roger Taylor to play on the record. Though they didn't record in the same studio, they were able to collaborate by sending tracks back and forth over the Internet.

"It's one of the only good things the computer has done for music," he said.

It's not the 37-year-old's only lament about rock today. Hawkins has spent much of his summer playing the album on the road, mostly in Europe. Hawkins said overseas audiences have a special appreciation for rock that appears to have been lost in the U.S.

"America is tough for rock music," he said sadly. "Rock 'n' roll used to be the main music for the youth, and it's not so much anymore. It's hip-hop and stuff."

In Europe, his band is likely to play in larger venues. "Rock and roll is still a stronghold there," he said. "They seem to embrace rock 'n' roll musicians."

Red Light Fever, released, is the second album from Hawkins and the Coattail Riders. The album not only features Hawkins' on drums, but also as a frontman.

"I love Donna Summer and I love ABBA. I love late '70s disco. I love the Bee Gees. I just love that period of recording"
TAYLOR HAWKINS

"I sing and play drums pretty much the whole time," said Hawkins, who equates his double duty to "running and making dinner at the same time."

Hawkins is able to explore his different musical talents while the Foo Fighters are on hiatus. However, he has no desire to come out from behind his drum set once his solo project comes to an end.

"In the Foo Fighters, my main job is to be the drummer, and that's enough," he said.

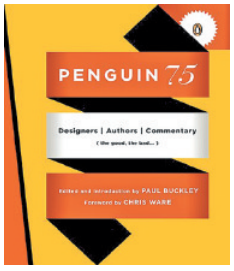
Judging a book by its cover

Art director Paul Buckley on what makes great jacket art ◆ He shows off his current favorites ◆ Intrigued? Learn more about the creative process in Penguin 75



Just what makes a book cover stand out on a crowded shelf? In the new retrospective Penguin 75: Designers, Authors, Commentary (the Good, the Bad . . .), longtime Penguin art director Paul Buckley tries to answer that exact question. The book features some of company's best covers with commentary by the artists, authors, editors and designers behind the creative process. Buckley shares his favorites with Metro.

Degrassi tackles transgender storyline this season

Popular teen TV drama known for pushing the limit with topics like unplanned pregnancy, underage drinking and angst-ridden rebellion, enters unchartered territory on Monday.

Degrassi marks a decade of unexpected pregnancies, underage drinking, broken hearts and general angst-ridden rebellion with a new season Monday that introduces its first transgender character.

The Canadian teen drama promises to enter uncharted ground with a storyline in which a new student, Adam, presents himself as a boy even though he was born a girl.

"I can truly say that when we decided to do this episode we realized this is brand new territory for us," says producer, director and actor Stefan Brogren, whose character Mr. Simpson returns as school principal.

"We've never even tried to breach this subject before. Of course we've dealt with gay and lesbian stories but you can't approach this the same way."

The new student is played by former Life With Derek star Jordan Todosey, a bubbly 15-year-old who says she had to chop off long blond locks, darken her hair and adopt a more boyish swagger to pull off the role.

"The writing is good, they really go there with that kind of stuff and I think that this character can really speak for anybody who is outcast or bullied or transgender or anything like that," Todosey said from the Toronto set earlier this year, after shooting a violent confrontation with school bullies.

"I can truly say that when we decided to do this episode we realized this is brand new territory for us."
STEFAN BROGREN, DEGRASSI ACTOR

"I really hope the fans like Adam."

Such delicate topics are certainly not new for the long-running franchise, which began as The Kids of Degrassi Street in 1980, and was followed by Degrassi Junior High, Degrassi High and Degrassi: The Next Generation.

Degrassi High famously sparked controversy in the United States when a pregnant character battled past protesters at an abortion clinic. Canadian viewers saw the full episode but U.S. viewers got an edited version that left it unclear whether she went through with the procedure.

Kelly and Regis wrap up in PEI

Live! morning show hosts thank Canadians for their hospitality Duo gush over the island's lush scenery.

Regis Philbin and Kelly Ripa wrapped up nearly a week of shows from Prince Edward Island with a beach bash and many thanks for all the Canadian hospitality.

The hosts of Live! with Regis and Kelly began their final episode with a salute from two CF-18 fighter planes, which circled the cheering crowd.

Thousands have turned out for the duo's four special tapings, which took place over the course of two days on Charlottetown's Confederation Landing Park.

Throughout the visit, the morning duo gushed over the island's lush scenery and fresh seafood, with Ripa saying on Thursday's episode that she was already planning a return.

Guests for the final broadcast included Sex and the City hunk John Corbett, whose girlfriend Bo Derek was sitting in the front row.

24 star Elisha Cuthbert also brought NHL boyfriend Dion Phaneuf, and the pop band OneRepublic performed.

Tourism officials are hoping publicity from the shows — which aired Monday through Thursday — will lead to a boost in tourism. Earlier in the week, the province cracked the Top 10 Google searches in the United States.

Letterman has some fun with Bristol & Levi

David Letterman finds the Bristol Palin-Levi Johnston engagement announcement irresistible as monologue fodder.

But the late-night host, who ran afoul of the Palin family last year with a misfired joke, took it relatively easy on the young couple on Wednesday's Late Show.

Letterman joked that Johnston will arrive for the wedding tied to "Sarah Palin's pickup." He also wisecracked that Bristol Palin made the announcement on an "hour-long ESPN special," a reference to the channel's show on LeBron James.

Letterman's final Palin joke poked fun at himself. Last year, he apologized to the Palins for a ribald joke involving one of their daughters.

Coleslaw doesn't have to be a mayonnaise-laden mess of shredded cabbage and carrots. The following recipes are great simple summer salads that will bring pops of flavour and colour to any picnic or barbecue.

Preparation:

1 In a large bowl, toss together salad ingredients.

2 In a small bowl, whisk together dressing ingredients. Dress salad just before serving and toss to coat.

Cocktail mixers get a makeover

SETH WENIG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Dushan Zaric mixes a cocktail called The Billionaire.

Spirits have gone premium. Bartenders have turned artisan. Even ice has become a little cooler.

So, it only makes sense that mixers are getting a makeover with upscale versions promising to bring chic cocktails to a fridge near you.

"Consumers just seem to get it immediately," says Jordan Silbert, founder of Q Tonic, an all-natural product introduced a few years ago.

Silbert got the idea to make a better mixer after drinking gin and tonics and realizing the premium gin had no business mingling with a mass-market product

A similar epiphany struck Dushan Zaric and Jason Kosmas, mixologists at New York's Employees Only bar who have just released two non-alcoholic mixers — a grenadine and a lime cordial — under the name EO Brands.

"We really went to great lengths to make sure that this is as natural and as delicious as it can be."

DUSHAN ZARIC

"We were not so happy with what was commercially available out there," says Zaric.

They researched and began making their own blend for the restaurants, eventually deciding to bottle and sell it.

Commercially available grenadine is mostly artificial, red dye and sweeteners, Zaric says. EO grenadine is reduced 100 per cent pomegranate juice sweetened with cane sugar and accented with spices. The lime cordial is reduced lime juice (also 100 per cent) with agave nectar and kaffir lime leaves for flavour and spice.

"We really went to great lengths to make sure that this is as natural and as delicious as it can be," he says.

"Some purists say nothing compares to mixing your cocktails from scratch, but says Zaric, "Ours is as close as you can get."

EO Brands mixers are being marketed to bars, online in New York City through FreshDirect, and are expected to be available in major markets soon at an upscale grocer, Zaric says.

Authenticity drove Silbert as well.

He figured out the components of tonic - quinine (a bitter that in its natural form comes from the bark of the cinchona tree), sweetener and carbonated water. Next step: order a bag of bark over the Internet and get to work.

He used agave nectar as a sweetener. But trying to create crisp, tight bubbles at home "drove me crazy," so he found a plant in Massachusetts where he had a couple hundred cases made. Bartenders started buying and he borrowed his father's station wagon to make deliveries. "My dad actually sat in the car while I unloaded this stuff."

Then he got discovered by Plymouth Gin, caught the attention of the New York Times and now sells Q Tonic to almost 3,000 places around the United States, including Whole Foods Markets.

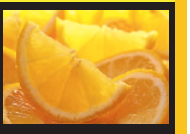
Superfood: Lemons



Known for their tangy and refreshing flavour, lemons are a great daily addition to a healthy diet. Mix lemon with hot water for a detoxing drink, as lemon acts as a cleanser, helping the body flush out toxins. The concoction will also help relieve heartburn, bloating and nausea.

Old Course sees new star emerge

Rory McIlroy, 21, posts a 63 to match lowest score ever at a major

In the 137 years since the British Open first came to St. Andrews, the Old Course rarely has been such a pushover. Rarer still was the score Rory McIlroy delivered.

Whether it was the luck of the draw or his tantalizing talent really didn't matter.

In conditions so calm that not a hair on his considerable mop was out of place, McIlroy set off on an incredible run into the record book Thursday with a 9-under 63 that gave him a two-shot lead.

"Going out there this morning with no wind, you're never going to get St. Andrews playing any easier," McIlroy said.

It was just as easy for John Daly, a former champion at St. Andrews and now the ultimate long shot. He first energized the gallery by bashing tee shots and making enough birdies for a 66, matching his best score in the British Open.

And it was just as easy for Tiger Woods, who ran off three straight birdies late in his round for a 67.

There were 45 rounds in the 60s, 73 players broke par and the average score was under par — 71.75. Mike Weir of Bright's Grove, Ont., was among those who didn't get in on the action, firing a 73.

On the other hand, no one took advantage like McIlroy, a 21-year-old from Northern Ireland with a game beyond his years. His 63 tied the lowest score in any major, and it was only the second such score at St. Andrews. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

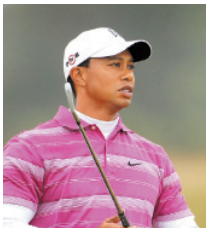
Tiger Woods



It was the first time in eight rounds in an Open at St. Andrews that Tiger Woods was not atop the leaderboard at the end of a round.

- MOVE He made his move through the loop, then ended his string of three straight birdies on the par-5 14th.
- MISS Woods was moving closer to the lead until he badly pulled a four-foot par putt on the 17th, then missed a 10-foot birdie try on the last hole.
- STILL IN IT Woods won the last two times on the Old Course by a combined 13 shots, and his bid to become the first player with three claret jugs at the home of golf is still in the picture.

Disabled list likely in Morneau's future

Hoping to use the all-star break as a slump-busting springboard, the Minnesota Twins must start the second half without Justin Morneau.

The big-swinging first baseman from New Westminster was out of the lineup again, still recovering from the effects of a concussion. He said before Thursday night's game against the first-place Chicago White Sox that he will probably land on the disabled list.

"It's a lot better than it was, especially the last few days," Morneau said. "Woke up this morning feeling pretty good. We did 25 minutes on the elliptical and felt pretty good. But as the day has gone on, the plan was to try and come in and hit today. We decided not to do that with what we did this morning. Just not feeling that great."

Manager Ron Gardenhire said the team would wait to make a decision until before Friday's game. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'Fogginess'

Morneau said he felt some "fogginess" after his workout in the morning, a week after getting accidentally kneed in the head.

Sanchez looks to give old team tough time

Lions cornerback to face Alouettes, with whom he shares 'special bond'

MONTREAL | B.C.

- Time: 7 p.m. Friday
  Channel: TSN

Having won a Grey Cup championship with the Montreal Alouettes has mellowed Davis Sanchez some.

Not so much that the B.C. Lions cornerback won't be looking to do a little rear-end alignment when he faces his old team in a CFL game Friday night at Empire Field.

"Because we have won a championship together I think I have a special bond with those guys," Sanchez said Thursday.

"It's pro sports and we all try to make a living.

"That's my job tomorrow to try and kick their asses. I'll do whatever I have to do and try and get a win for my team."

Sanchez, a native of North Delta, B.C., played seven of his previous nine CFL seasons with Montreal. He was part of the Alouettes team that sipped champagne from the Grey Cup in November.

Over the winter Sanchez left the Als and signed with the Lions.

Veteran Montreal slotback Ben Cahoon said it will be mind over muscle when he lines up against Sanchez.

"We have a good respect for him," said Cahoon.

Opposite ends

B.C. and Montreal both have 1-1 records but bring different mental attitudes into Friday's game.

- The Lions were pounded 37-18 in last weekend's first regular season game at Empire Field. The B.C. defence was dissected and the offensive line allowed four sacks.
- Montreal rallied for 15 points in the fourth quarter for a 33-23 win over Edmonton on Sunday.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You tend to get what you want in the end but if you are too ruthless you could turn people against you. That may not worry you now but what about later when you need others' assistance?

♉ Taurus April 23-May 21 You are strongly advised to examine the details of what you are working on very closely indeed today. Your mind seems to be wandering a bit of late and if you overlook something important it will be costly.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You seem to be looking in every direction but the one you want to go. Why is that? Most likely it's because you fear what you might see.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Both at home and at work it is of the utmost importance that you are pleasant to partners and colleagues today. Why? Because you are going to need their support.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Strength of mind is one of your great positives and you will need to be strong today. You know you won't change anything by ranting and raving, so just do what has to be done. .

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 You are under a lot of pressure at the moment but Mars in your sign gives you the power to deal with any challenge that comes your way. But don't forget your Virgo common sense — you'll need plenty of that.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You may be tempted to ignore an inconvenient truth but deep down you know the matter will have to be faced sooner or later, and the longer you leave it the harder it will be.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 It might be wise to agree with someone in a position of power so you stay in their good books, but it's not really you is it? It would be more honest, and more fun, to point out why their reasoning is faulty. It's your choice.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 What happens over the next few days will provide you with the means to make a name for yourself, even if your efforts have fallen short in the past.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You must do the right thing today, even if it means you lose out financially. You have a moral obligation to help a friend or colleague who depends on you.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Be realistic about what you can hope to achieve, but not so realistic that you have to give up on your dream. Your creativity is governed by one simple rule: If you can think it you can do it, though it may take some time. SALLY BROMPTON
